

RESTAURANT BUSINESS (РЕСТОРАННЕ ГОСПОДАРСТВО)

Середенко Н.О., гр. ГРС-48

Наукові керівники: канд. філол. наук, доц. І.В. Удовенко,

ст. викл. Л.А. Подворна

Харківський державний університет харчування та торгівлі

Сфера обслуговування задовольняє потреби споживачів у харчуванні через мережу закладів ресторанного господарства.

Restaurant business is a type of economic activity of economic entities to provide services to meet the needs of consumers in food with or without leisure. Restaurant is an organizational and structural unit in the field of restaurant business, which carries out production and trade activities: produces and (or) prepares, sells and organizes the consumption of own products and purchased goods, can organize consumer leisure.

Type of restaurant is a a set of general characteristics of production and trade activities of the restaurant. Class of restaurant establishment is a set of distinctive features of a restaurant establishment of a certain type, which characterizes the level of requirements for products of own production and purchased goods, conditions of their consumption, organization of service and leisure of consumers. Restaurants have three main functions: the production of culinary products, its sale and organization of consumption.

Restaurant establishments are classified according to the following main features:

I. Depending on the location and contingent of consumers served, restaurant establishments are divided into publicly available enterprises and closed establishments.

II. According to the level of customer service and the range of services provided, restaurants and bars are divided into three classes – luxury, superior and first.

III. Depending on the functions performed by restaurants, cafes, canteens, snack bars classified into: procurement; preparatory; handouts; trade; mixed type.

IV. Depending on the range of products, there are complex, universal (general type) and specialized enterprises. V. Depending on the time of operation of the restaurant business can be permanent and seasonal.

V. Depending on the type of location of the restaurant business are divided into stationary and mobile.