Загалом, людина, яка володіє мовами, є різнобічно розвинутою особистістю, відкритою до сприйняття нового, більш вільною і впевненою у спілкуванні з людьми. І аграрна галузь не є винятком.

DIGITAL TECHNOLOGIES AND PROJECT METHOD OF LEARNING FOREIGN LANGUAGES

Many people in the modern world need to be able to communicate in English. It is the key to all doors, and it is the key to making new friends, sharing information, or even getting promoted at work. English is one of the most widely spoken languages in the world, with about 1.5 billion people speaking it, based on data from the Statistics and Data – 2022 [2].

If you choose one of the several foreign languages to learn, you should pay attention to the purpose of learning the language. Depending on whether you plan to just travel or live or work in the country where you are going to learn the language, it depends on how much time you should devote to learning it. For traveling, it is enough to know the language at a basic level, so you can practice it from 1 to 3 times a week. If your goal is to move to another country or work, you should practice a little bit every day for the best effect [3]. One of the advantages of English is that it is easier to learn than Korean/Chinese (Mandarin) or Japanese. First of all, English is easier because of the pronunciation. For example, in Chinese, many characters are similar to each other, but they differ in tone and it takes about 10-15 years to master the language. Another advantage of starting to learn English is that there are a lot of books, articles, TV series, or translations from well-known film companies readily available. Also, if you have reached a basic level of English, it will be easier for you to learn other languages. For example, finding a Ukrainian-Spanish course will be much more difficult than finding an English-Spanish curriculum [4].

The application of project methodology at lessons ensures the support of permanent interest to foreign language learning, deepen and systemize students' knowledge on studied themes. Teachers have to provide students with more opportunities for their knowledge and skills application while interacting with peers. The emphasis should be made on interaction of participants for goal achievement, taking into account personality needs and peculiarities and experience of students. In particular, for mixed-ability groups the students independence encouraging in language learning can ensure meeting different needs, expectations and competence gaining by some individual pupils. The need in language learning independence development could be considered as the impulse for long-life learning where each personality makes sensible decisions on their further study direction [1]. For example, with the purpose of foreign language curriculum mastering the carrying out the project-modules requires from students some skills in searching proper information, making a project with conclusions and their personal opinions on the selected topic. This helps to develop communicative competence, independence and activeness of pupils during language communication [1]. To improve your English, you can try the courses for beginners from Campster Course, which contains the basic rules, phonetics, grammar, and simple examples of language use. It is equally important to use a translator if you do not know some words. Sometimes we can forget that the simplest word is the norm, that's why you should practice speaking - to get deeper into the environment. This can be communicating with people on the Internet (Tandem mobile app), you can also search for English-speaking communities based on your hobbies and just chat or talk to people. It is useful to use different translators such as Google Lens (or Google Translate) - for quick translation of text from photos (in most new devices this application is built into the camera), but it has its drawbacks. For example, inaccurate translation makes it unsuitable for translating large amounts of information at once. DeepL Translate is a website that will help you to compose small phrases, has a slightly clearer translation than Google, and can translate documents (doc, pdf, pptx). Just like Google, it cannot translate large texts without losing the meaning. Thus, project method makes possible to individualize the learning process, demonstrate independence of students in planning, organization and control of his activity. However, it is important to respect the rights and interests of students as personalities concerning their way of learning. Involving students in project making is one of the ways which will help them gaining some confidence in their ability to manage their own learning and become independent.
