FOREIGN LANGUAGE AS A KEY TO WORLD ACHIEVEMENTS IN VETERINARY MEDICINE

Every person would like to achieve great heights of success in his professional career. For example, someone would like to make a new scientific discovery, invent some kind of device or create a medicine that will treat serious illnesses.

My future profession is a veterinarian and I can be sure that every veterinarian would like to receive world achievements in this field of medicine. Just how to do it? How to find the right opportunity? I believe that a foreign language is exactly the key to solving the problem and totally agree with a statement of Canadian psycholinguist Frank Smith: “One language sets you in a corridor for life. Two languages open every door along the way”. Perhaps this quote means that by knowing more than one language, your whole future expands. There are opportunities for learning and for future careers.

In my opinion, vitally important and significant foreign language to learn is English. The role of the English language in the modern world is invaluable. It allows you to communicate in different countries, makes traveling interesting and unforgettable, helps you to get a job and promotes career advancement.

If we talk about the importance of knowing English for a veterinarian, then we can no doubt say that this is the key to a successful career. After all, knowledge of English is an important aspect of the competence of a veterinarian. English may be needed in order to keep up a conversation with foreign clients or, for example, for the opportunity to study or train abroad.

But more importantly, knowledge of English opens up such more opportunities as participation in international conferences and forums of veterinary medicine specialists. Thanks to this, every veterinarian who wishes will be able to receive and adopt the precious knowledge and experience of foreign scientists and practitioners.

Another important advantage is that English is the main language of global companies. Therefore, if you are a good specialist in the field of veterinary medicine and speak English at a high level, you can apply for a job in the best and most famous veterinary clinics around the world, such as Modern Veterinary Clinic in Dubai, Banfield Pet Hospital in Washington or Animal Hospital of Brooklyn in New York. Agree that each of us would like to work in companies of this level.

And, perhaps, the last advantage that I would like to highlight is that knowledge of English gives you access to a huge amount of information useful for professional growth. Leading articles and books, scientific papers, the latest achievements in the field of veterinary medicine, the discovery of modern technologies - all of these are at your disposal if you know English.

English is without a doubt a truly universal language. English is understood by specialists and educated people all over the world. Often, specialists with knowledge of foreign languages are valued much more than their colleagues. Knowledge of English in the field of veterinary medicine is valuable quality that will help a doctor to develop himself in different directions, improving his theoretical knowledge and practical skills. Therefore, if your goal is to make a successful career, then it's time to think about the future and learn English now.
